STAKEHOLDER PANEL (PARENTS, FAMILIES, AND CLIENTS) SUNSET BALLROOM

How are they experiencing mental health, substance use, and primary care issues? Is integration helpful? How do they view the current System of Care? What do they need to access needed services?

Steve Pitman, President, Board of Directors, National Alliance on Mental Illness (NAMI) - Orange County

In all areas of traditional medical practice the family is seen as an important support system for the “client/patient.” When treating mental illness, the family continues to be seen as a bit of a nuisance and in all likelihood part of the problem. The family should be seen as an important part of the support system necessary for the client to live a happy, healthy, productive life.

Linda Naranjo, Peer Support Specialist, NAMI San Diego

Linda, a native San Diegan, Peer Employment Training Graduate, NAMI San Diego employee and future social worker, enjoys crocheting, food, watching movies and pampering her dogs. She will share life experiences that as an individual, intern and professional in the behavioral health system contribute to her wellness and the community.

Daphyne Watson, MSW, Executive Director, Mental Health America of San Diego County

The presentation will focus on the need to fully address the mental health needs of all in the community. Often ethnic groups and other various communities have not benefited or understood the benefits of whole person, integrated mental health care. Mental Health America of San Diego County operates a program that is designed to focus on the mental health needs of various ethnicities and utilizes innovative approaches to care.

Rebekah Hedman, Parent Partner, San Diego Center for Children WrapWorks Program

Militzia Jimenez, MS, CRC, Employment Specialist, Mental Health Systems Inc., Familia a Familia Teacher, Member of NAMI North Coastal

COUNTY PANEL -- RESPONSES TO THURSDAY AND FRIDAY'S DISCUSSIONS SUNSET BALLROOM

How are counties coping with all the change? How much have they accomplished toward full integration of mental health, substance use disorders and primary care? How far along are counties toward the new SUD system of care? And, how are counties managing the criminal justice population?

Bruce Copley, MA, Executive Director, Santa Clara County Behavioral Health Department, Alcohol and Drug Administrator

With the implementation of Health Care Reform has come awareness of the need to provide a comprehensive set of behavioral health services. The primary care health system is more and more aware of the need to have an integrated care management system that includes use of behavioral health interventions to assist in addressing chronic health conditions. To meet this need in the public sector the traditional division of mental health and substance use services needs to be addressed. The future of the public behavioral health system needs to be one of integration and the ability to address the large number of clients who have dual diagnosis conditions along with a primary chronic health condition. The next five years will be the time-frame for the public system to achieve this needed integration.
